Farmers, Read This.

We have been informed that it has been circulated over the county that we are not in the trade for Corn, Wheat, Bye, Oats, etc. We desire to contradict this report and say to our friends that we are in the market for ALL KINDS OF GRAIN and pay market value for same. We also wish to state in this connection that we will be in the market for New Wheat and, as heretofore, pay the highest market price. Please remember, also, we keep all kind of field seed, such as Clover, Timothy, Orchard Grass, Blue Grass, Cow Peas, Millet and Hungarian seed.

Meeting at Hustonville.

Eld F M Tindler is holding a splendid revival at Hustonville, and is doing great good for the church.

This office is heels over head in job printing this week, and we trust our readers will pardon lack of news. Fact of the matter is there is no news this week.

Lake Placid is at the high-water mark. The water is delightful and many people drink it instead of that which has been standing in uncleaned cisterns for many years.

In hot weather, be very careful about drinking ice-water and other injurious beverages. The lemon is the safest and best. D D Geiger, at the Lancaster Grocery, serves pure lemonade and it's cold as ice can make it.

Postponed.

Mr E H Beazley, of Stanford, the well known promoter of elocutionary contests has announced that the coming contest, which has been advertised to take place next Friday, June 23rd, has been postponed until the first week in August.

Notice.

First Sunday in July will be our regular Conference day at Baptist church. It is desired that all the members be present. Conference at 10:30, preaching at 11. Will hold services at 3 p m in Mr Am Bourne's yard on the New Danville pike. Every body invited.

As Happy as Larks.

The happiest and jolliest set of men we ever saw were the old Confederate soldiers who attended the reunion in Louisville last week. They are loud in their praise of the hospitable treatment received from the people of Louisville and report the reunion as the most successful and enjoyable ever held.

Saxton & Trost.

Everybody will come to hear the famous Saxton & Trost Military Band at the Lancaster Fair. This is the oldest musical organization in the South and all lovers of music are familiar with it's fine work. They will also play for the ball, the young men will give.

Mr Marksberry Hurt.

While attending the Confederate reunion at Louisville last week, Mr H A B Marksberry met with a very painful accident. He had witnessed the production, "Fall of Port Arthur," and in descending the steps at one of the temporary stands, lost his footing and fell, breaking two of his ribs. He was removed to the home of his daughter, Mrs A H Rice, and remained until Monday, when he was able to come home. The pain has been very great, but he was soon able to get about, and is now back at his granary attending to business as usual.

We will be very much obliged if those of our subscribers who are in arrears will send us a check for the amount. Sick or well, dead or alive, we are called upon for what we owe, and we are compelled to come up with the money whether or no. We have been unable to work for more than six weeks, and been to considerable extra expense, so please look at the label on this paper and see how you stand. The price of all newspapers is so low that it is customary to pay a year in advance.

A Good Circus

Van Amburg shows, which pitched their tents in this city last week, gave one of the best performances ever given in this city, and an immense crowd was thoroughly satisfied with every detail. Although the rain came down in torrents, the splendid canvass turned every drop. The bareback riding was especially fine, while the trapeze and horizontal bar work was above the average. The show has more handsome horses than any circus ever brought to this section.

Had Many Friends Here.

Many Lancaster people were deeply grieved to learn of the death of Nath Woodcock, which occurred at Junction City last Thursday. Mr Woodcock, was perhaps the best-known traveling man on the road, and his ready wit and endless number of funny stories made him a welcome visitor everywhere. He had been ill for some time, and came in from a trip to the mountains, being forced to bed at Junction City. Nath Woodcock has brought sunshine into many a crowd, and he will be remembered for many years.

PASSES TO HIS REWARD.

Mayor Robert Kinnaird Dies at His Home in This City After Lingering Illness.

After a lingering and painful illness Maj. Robert Kinnaird passed peacefully away at his home, on Stanford street, Monday morning at two o'clock. Several years ago, he was attacked by throat trouble, which annoyed him very much, and finally drifted into tuberculosis of the throat. He seldom complained, however, and not until a few months ago did he give evidence of the trouble. He spoke to several of his intimate friends in regard to his condition, but never gave up until weakness and intense suffering prevented his coming to his office.

Major Kinnaird was born in Lancaster on the 12th day of January, 1848, spending his life in this city. When a mere boy, he went to work under his father, Squire Wm H Kinnaird, in the National Bank of Lancaster. He was fond of the business, and his steady work soon won for him the responsible place of teller in that institution, which position he held for more than twenty years. Although he handled thousands upon thousands of dollars, yet he never made an error of consequence, and was always polite and obliging to those who came into the place of business. In fact, his courteous and gentlemanly treatment of everybody, rich and poor alike, made a legion of warm and faithful friends for the bank. He also worked insurance at the same time, and this grew to such an extent that in latter years he has been in this business altogether.

When the law was made creating the office of Mayor for towns of Lancaster's class, he was unanimously elected to that office, and has filled that responsible place ever since. He was for improvements, and the up building of the town. When the City Council voted a tie on granting the franchise for electric lights, he quickly cast the deciding vote, although a strong fight was made against the improvement. He was the same way in every matter coming before the Council. Our readers will remember what a fight was made against the water works improvement. We can say from personal knowledge that Bob Kinnaird did more hard work to bring about this improvement than any man in the town. He made a personal appeal to almost every voter in the town limits to vote for water.

Lancaster never had a more liberal citizen. He contributed willingly to every worthy cause, and would cheerfully give his last penny to any one in need. Every one who had the pleasure of his acquaintance called him "Bob," and when people, old and young take the liberty of addressing an older man by his first name, it is proof conclusive that deep down in their hearts they have a love for that person. He was a member of all the local lodges, but devoted almost his entire attention to his first love—Masonry. He was secretary of Lancaster Lodge 104 for many years, and held that responsible office at the time of his death. He was a life-long and consistent member of the Presbyterian church, and while he made no show of his religion, yet we never knew a more conscientious and God-fearing man. He was one of the few men who put their religion into the every day walks of life by doing unto others as he would have them do unto him and by helping, aiding and assisting those in distress, sickness or need. He had a superlative contempt for a man who would parade in the garb of Christian on Sunday and then turn the cold shoulder to his fellowmen during the business portion of the week.

Robert Kinnaird was the son of Wm H and Patsy McKee Kinnaird, who come from the most prominent families in Kentucky's history. His father, who was cashier of the National Bank for so many years, came to Lancaster when fourteen years of age and in 1865 organized and opened that institution. He is survived by a wife and three children, his parents, five sisters and three brothers.

The funeral services were conducted at the residence Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock, his brother-in-law, Dr Donald McDonald, officiating, at conclusion of which the Knights Templar and Master Masons took charge of the remains and proceeded to the Lancaster Cemetery, where Sir Knight Henry G Sandiford, of Ryan Commandery No 17, conducted the beautiful and impressive burial services. The grave was completely hidden from view by the many handsome floral designs.

Senator Farris Promoted.

The Frankfort Chair Co., for whom Senator Geo. T Farris has been "on the road" for some time, has been consolidated with several other similar concerns, which form about the largest firm in the United States. Senator Farris' ability as a salesman was recognized by his retention as traveling representative. He will have more territory than heretofore, and a better thing all around. He is a splendid gentleman and his host of friends are delighted to know of his good fortune.

Not All Angels.

Is the sweet girl graduate of yesterday helping her mother in the kitchen today? Or is she sitting in the twilight listening for the footsteps of some dude not worth a dollar a dozen and wondering why her father, who has wasted his money on her and has a crook in his back from working for her, hasn't more style about him? pertinently asks an exchange.

The sweet, girl-graduate, naturally an angelic creature, can make an angel or an idiot of herself, just as she chooses.

The Wheat Crop.

Reports from various sections of the county show that there will be an exceptionally large yield of wheat, and that the harvest will be at least ten days earlier than usual, says the Winchester Democrat. The wheat heads are much longer than for a number of years and the grain is plump and fully developed. There is going to be considerable difficulty in some sections to get binders to harvest the crop, and many owners of same are asking an increased price per acre over previous years to cut the crop. There is considerable difference of opinion as to what price will be asked or paid, and we understand there will be a number of buyers in the field.

Mrs. Ernest Woods Dead.

After a lingering illness, Mrs Ernest Woods of Paint Lick, died Tuesday. Mrs Woods had been a sufferer for many months, and recently made a trip to the West in hope of regaining her health. She returned a few weeks ago having derived little or no benefit by the journey. She was beloved by all who knew her, and will be greatly missed by her legion of friends. The bereaved family have much sympathy in their irreparable loss. Funeral services were conducted by Rev D E Frierson, the interment taking place at the Paint Lick Cemetery.

No Stock or Stocks.

The tendency of the age is to issue no stock in Life Insurance Companies, for the reason that the interests of the stock-holder and the policy holder are sure to conflict and bring about trouble. The same is true when the funds of a company are invested in any stocks, which fluctuate. We have a policy in the New York Life, which we prize very highly, because that company neither issues stock nor invests in stocks of any kind. It is purely mutual, and it, with its earnings, belongs to the policy-holders. It issues an incontestible policy from date of contract, and has as good facilities as any company to yield on its investments. It has $400,000,000 assets, and it paid $40,000,000 on death claims and matured policies in 1904. It is very popular with the masses and especially with financiers.

Col. Caperton Buys Fine Home.

Richmond Register: Blair Park is the name given by Col. J. W. Caperton to his new home, the Letcher place containing 60 acres with elegant and costly improvements within the city limits, on West Main street, sold on Thursday July 8, at public sale to the highest bidder.

This is the name of the ancestral home in the Woods line in Albemarle county, Virginia. Col. Caperton's grand mother on his father's side, was Lucy Woods, daughter of Capt. Archibald Woods, who fought with Washington in the Revolution war. Blair Park of Albemarle county, Va., was built in 1737, by Michael Woods, whose wife was Lady Elizabeth Campbell, sister of Sir James Campbell and a cousin of the Duke of Argyle, Scotland.

The Rev Dr. Foote, in his history of the Presbyterian church of Virginia, says that Michael Woods settled in Albemarle county Va., in 1734 and purchased a vast and magnificent tract of land upon which he built a splendid dwelling and called his estate Blair Park.

Col. Caperton is the fifth generation from Michael Woods and Lady Elizabeth Campbell. Mr. Clarence E. Woods of this city whom people desire expect will soon be their Mayor is also descended from Michael Woods. Blair Park in Virginia is now owned by the Micajah Woods of the same family.

Old-Fashioned Foot Washing.

An old-fashioned foot washing took place Sunday at Beech Grove church and was witnessed by one of the largest crowds ever seen there, says the Bowling Green News. The services were conducted by the Rev Mr Jones, of the Baptist church and were solemn and impressive. Men and women were lined up opposite each other on the lawn, and the elders girded about the waist with a towel, and coats off, went from one to another, and the women the same, washing one foot on each member, while hymns of joy were being sung by the congregation. After the foot washing a big basket dinner was served. A member mounted a stump and invited everybody to eat, as there was plenty for all.
